

The latest release from Axial Press, Bernard Lonergan : His Life and Leading Ideas, is now available.

This book was written by Pierrot Lambert and Philip McShane. It is the story of the strange man Bernard Lonergan (1904-1984) who is slowly being recognized as a hidden genius of the twentieth century. His economic perspective is enough to guarantee his position in history as the inventor of genuine economic science. But even more fundamental is his structuring of the key pattern of global collaboration that would make that economics an operating reality, and ground an effective cherishing of humanity and its planetary home.

To obtain this book send a cheque or money order for $40 CDN (includes S&H) made out to:

Philip McShane
314-1436 Graveley St.
Vancouver, B.C.
Canada.
V5L 3A4